

Vision Clarity Map

Get clear on where you are headed and what it will take to get there

V.I.S.I.O.N. STANDS FOR

Visualize • Initiate • Strategize • Implement • Optimize • Navigate

Hi there,

It is hard to build toward something when the picture is blurry. When your vision is unclear, every decision feels heavier, you second guess your direction, and you stay busy without feeling like you are actually moving toward anything that matters.

This map is short by design. It will help you do four things: ground yourself in what matters now, name where you are headed, notice what feels out of alignment, and define the structure you need to get there. This is the foundation of the V.I.S.I.O.N. work.

Give yourself fifteen quiet minutes. Let your honest answers come first, before the practical ones.

Ground: what matters now

What matters most to you in this season of your life and business?

What are you no longer willing to tolerate or carry forward?

Direction: where you are headed

Picture your life and business twelve weeks from now if things go well. What is different? What does a good day look like?

If you had to name one clear goal for the next twelve weeks, what would it be? Why this one, and why now?

What becomes possible for you when you reach it?

Alignment: what feels off

Where do you feel the most misalignment right now, between where you are and where you want to be?

What habits or patterns have been holding you back from that direction?

Structure: what it will take

What support, systems, or structure do you need that you do not have yet?

What is one thing you can put in place this week to support your direction?

Your Vision Declaration

Pull it together into one sentence. Write the vision you are committing to for the next twelve weeks, in the present tense, as if it is already underway.

One last thing

Clarity is not a luxury you earn once everything is figured out. It is the thing that makes everything else possible. When you know where you are headed and why it matters, your decisions get lighter and your actions get sharper.

If you want to turn this clarity into a real twelve-week plan with structure, strategy, and steady accountability, that is what the V.I.S.I.O.N. program is built for. When you are ready, you can book a free discovery call and we will look at whether it is the right next step for you.

failforwardcoaching.com